A

There was a robbery (抢劫) at City Central Bank late yesterday afternoon. Two men entered the bank at about 4 p.m. and told the bank teller on duty to give them $ 1,000,000. The robbers were carrying guns and wearing black masks to cover their faces. The robbers told all the customers in the bank to lie down on the floor. Witnesses (目击者) said that everyone in the bank was very frightened and did what the robbers told them.

The bank teller agreed to give them the money but told them they'd have to wait a few minutes. She said the bank manager would have to get the money out of the safety. As the robbers were waiting for the money, the teller tried to press an alarm button (按警报按钮) that was hidden under the counter. It was a silent alarm, so the robbers didn't realize it had been set off.

Just as the manager arrived with the money, ten police officers entered the bank. The robbers were very surprised that the officers caught them easily. The robbers are now in custody (拘留), and will appear in court next week.

Police congratulated Miss Alston, the bank teller, on brave act. The bank manager said that he would give Miss Alston a week's vacation to thank her.

If you look at the top of your phone, you'll usually see a little symbol that says 3G or 4G. The "G" stands for the "generation (代)" of your mobile network. But these symbols will become things of the past after 5G networks fully arrive.

On March 30, Shanghai vice-mayor (副市长) Wu Qing made the first 5G video call on a Huawei Mate X smart phone. Shanghai has also become the first city in China to start testing 5G networks.

About 100 times faster than 4G networks, 5G will let people download and upload data faster than ever before. But 5G won't just bring faster mobile Internet. People can use it for many other things as well.

For example, 5G will help to make self-driving cars safer. Today's self-driving test cars have one problem — lag (延迟). When the car "sees" an obstacle (障碍物), it sends this information to a data center and receives instructions.

However, it takes time to send and receive this information. With this kind of lag, the cars might crash because they don't receive instructions in time. With 5G, this lag will be greatly lowered, making the cars safer.

5G could also be used to power the Internet of things (IoT, 物联网). This refers to (指的是) a large online network that connects all things and people. For example, with IoT, your refrigerator could automatically (自动地) place an order online for eggs when it finds that there are no eggs left inside.

- ( ) 51. In which city was 5G tested for the first time?
A. Beijing.            B. Shanghai.            C. Shenzhen.            D. Guangdong.
- ( ) 52. From the passage, we can know that _____.
A. 5G is used all over China
B. there are no symbols at the top of our phones
C. we can now buy self-driving cars
D. 5G networks are much faster than 4G or 3G
- ( ) 53. The writer uses self-driving cars as an example to _____.
A. explain how self-driving cars work
B. show us how advanced self-driving cars are
C. warn about the possible dangers of self-driving cars
D. explain how 5G's fast speed can be helpful
- ( ) 54. According to the passage, people can use 5G for many things EXCEPT _____.
A. education            B. self-driving cars            C. the IoT            D. smart phones
- ( ) 55. According to the passage, the IoT is _____.
A. a robot that can do housework
B. an online store where you can buy anything
C. a large online network that connects things and people
D. a type of high-tech refrigerator
